The Hague Journal of Diplomacy is the premier research journal for the study of diplomacy and its role in contemporary international relations. It publishes the best research on the theory, practice and technique of diplomacy in both its traditional state-based bilateral and multilateral forms, plus more recent forms of diplomacy such as track-two diplomacy, field diplomacy and public diplomacy practised by states and non-state entities. Each issue contains research articles and at least one piece focused on the practical aspects of diplomatic experience. The Hague Journal of Diplomacy promotes the analysis and understanding of diplomacy by acquainting a broad readership with the best works being undertaken in diplomatic studies in a variety of intellectual traditions. Diplomatic studies is an interdisciplinary and inclusive field. The Hague Journal of Diplomacy is therefore open to the wide array of methodologies by which diplomacy may be studied.

Special Issue

Diplomacy and the European Union

HJD 2009:2

Editors: Jan Melissen en Paul Sharp

Guest Editors: Brian Hocking and Jozef Bátorá

EU foreign policy is presented as something qualitatively different from traditional, state-centred formulations in terms of agendas, actors, and modes of delivery. It is clear that the more delimited sphere of diplomacy is registering significant change. With this in mind, the central aim of this special issue of HJD is to reflect on the changing nature of diplomacy, what it signifies in the EU environment and how it is adapting to the demands placed upon it. In this sense it reflects a longstanding debate on diplomacy in changing environments, but one which has frequently failed to recognise its essential character from pre-state manifestations to those forms associated with the European states system.

Contributors: Jozef Bátorá and Brian Hocking, Rebecca Adler Nissen, Simon Duke, Alan Hardacre and Michael Smith, Knud Erik Jørgensen, Stephan Keukeleire, Robin Thiers and Arnout Justaert, David Spence.
